How does media support and/or challenge the family role?

Family vs Peers--(Handel, 1990)
The family's role is critical in forming basic values. Within the family, essential developments occur. The child learns to:

- think and speak
- internalize norms, beliefs, and values
- form some basic attitudes
- develop a capacity for intimate and personal relationships
- acquire a self-image

Media as an Agent of Socialization

- Multi-tasking caused by cell phones making students less able to focus on school work
- 14 year old averages 27,000 texts a month--too much???
- 14 year old-averages 6 hours of video games on weekdays
- Teachers must spend less time on material so can do reading in class (students don't read anymore)
- Students don't get "down time" to "rest their brains"
- Students sleep below healthy recommendations of 8-10 hrs

Does media have a largely positive, negative, or neutral impact on students???
